Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 2,3,5-7 and 9 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claim 9 of U.S. Patent No. 5,772,680 in view of Moll, et al.-5,309,896.

The patent claims all of the claimed limitations with the exception of the opening in the handle, the balloon material, and the handle having a fluid-tight seal.

Moll discloses that it was known to provide an opening in a handle aligned with the bore of the tubular member. It would have been obvious to have provided an aligned opening in the handle in order to introduce instruments into the tubular member through the handle. Moll discloses that it was known to use an inelastic balloon in an instrument used to provide a working space in a body. It would have been obvious to have made the claimed balloon out of an inelastic material because it allows for the device to be tailored for a particular procedure and prevents over-expansion of the balloon. Moll discloses that it was known to provide a fluid-tight seal in a handle. It would have been obvious to have provided the claimed handle with a fluid-tight seal in order to allow for introduction of instruments into the tubular body while preventing the possibility of escaping insufflation gases through the handle/port.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 4,8 and 10-15 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the rejected claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
